Mark Neuzil is a professor at the University of St. Thomas in St. Paul, Minn., in the Department of Communication and Journalism and Director of the Office for Mission. He received his Ph.D. in mass communication from the University of Minnesota, his master's degree in journalism from the University of Minnesota and his bachelor's degree from Iowa State University in political science and journalism. He teaches courses in reporting, environmental communication, media ethics and communication history.

His latest book is The Environment and the Press: From Adventure Writing to Advocacy (Northwestern University Press, 2008), which was the winner of the James A. Tankard Book Award from the Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication.

He is also the co-author of A Spiritual Field Guide; Meditations for the Outdoors (Brazos Press, 2005), with Bernard Brady. He is the author of Views of the Mississippi: The Photographs of Henry Bosse (Minnesota, 2001), which won a Minnesota Book Award, and co-author of Mass Media and Environmental Conflict: America's Green Crusades (Sage, 1996). He is also a co-author of Writing Across the Media (Bedford/St. Martin's, 1999). Neuzil was a National Endowment for the Humanities fellow in world environmental history at the University of California-Santa Cruz, a board member of the Society of Environmental Journalists, and an associate editor of Environmental Communication Yearbook.

Neuzil is a regular contributor to Minnpost, an on-line newspaper in Minneapolis. A former summer park ranger, Neuzil has worked as a reporter and editor with the Associated Press, the Star Tribune of Minneapolis-St. Paul, the Cedar Rapids Gazette, the Quad-City Times, the Ames Daily Tribune and the New Ulm (Minn.) Journal. He has won a Page One Award from the Society of Professional Journalists and an on-line news award from the Society of Environmental Journalists.
